Clarion strengthens commercial team

The specialist commercial team at Leeds-based Clarion is growing with the addition of Linzi Sutton as associate.

Linzi completed a two year training contract with Eversheds in September 2012 before becoming an associate in its commercial team. She specialises in commercial law including general commercial contracts and IT.

In her new role with Clarion, Linzi will be providing advice to business clients in relation to commercial contracts and commercial law in general.

“Working with a wide range of clients from smaller businesses to listed companies, we have found that our commercial offering has been in demand particularly from firms which have outgrown their current legal provider and need specific technical advice in this specialist area,” explains Matthew Hattersley, partner and head of Clarion’s commercial team. “As a result, the team at Clarion is continuing to grow and Linzi is a welcome addition.”

Linzi adds, “The team at Clarion has an excellent reputation for working closely with clients to develop their strategy and help them to achieve their long term goals. I’ve also been impressed by the firm’s entrepreneurial approach to providing legal advice and the ambitious nature of its management.”
