Yorkshire family motor retailer supports the Bradford International Film Festival once again

Yorkshire-based family business JCT600 is once again providing executive chauffeur driven cars for the stars attending the Bradford International Film Festival in partnership with Virgin Media (BIFF) which started last week.

Running from 27 March-6 April and celebrating its 20th edition, the Bradford International Film Festival this year comprises 127 films, including premieres, previews and cinematic surprises. Veteran Scottish actor Brian Cox, who appeared as the first on-screen Dr Hannibal Lecter, is the recipient of this year’s Lifetime Achievement Award and takes part in a Screen Talk with festival co-director Neil Young. British film director Sally Potter who has been making films for 30 years including Ginger & Rosa, and Orlando will receive a BIFF Fellowship.
“This is one of the highlights of the year in the city’s cultural calendar and, as ever, we’re happy to play our part in supporting the festival by providing the stars with chauffeur-driven cars from our prestigious fleet of BMWs,” comments John Loose, general manager at JCT600 BMW Bradford. “It’s great that the festival is celebrating its 20th edition and it will, no doubt, once again attract visitors from all over the world to Bradford, UNESCO’s first City of Film.”

With its head office in Bradford, JCT600 comprises 47 car dealerships including BMW, Chevrolet, Mazda, MINI, Peugeot, Vauxhall and Volkswagen in Bradford.
