

Date: 07 February 2025

SDL Property Auctions

Chance to buy your own wedding venue:
North Norfolk register office to go under the hammer

North Walsham register office, over the years the venue for countless marriages and registrations of births and deaths for families across North Norfolk, is up for auction this month with a £110,000 guide price.

Owned by Norfolk County Council, the 2,000 sq ft building, whose scenic 36-seat Paston Room was a popular backdrop for civil marriage ceremonies, is for sale in an online timed auction auction with SDL Property Auctions, part of Eddisons, on 12 February.

Andrew Parker, auctioneer and partner at SDL Property Auctions, said: “This historic building holds a special place in the hearts of many couples and if anyone does fancy buying the place where they tied the knot, this is certainly a unique opportunity.”

pr · digital · seo

He added: “That said, the property is actually suitable for many other uses, subject to a buyer gaining the necessary planning consent. It’s a single-storey building on a quarter of an acre site that’s close to the railway station and North Walsham’s busy town centre. The town itself is also in a great location and popular with visitors as the gateway to the Broads National Park and to the wonderful North Norfolk coastline.”

For more information about the former register office in North Walsham, or to register to bid, go to sdlauctions.co.uk. The timed online auction will open for bidding at 12noon on 12 February, closing at 2pm the following day.